Albert Wu (4th year)
alberto.wu@gmail.com

Hey, I'm Albert. I came to faith during my freshmen year at UCLA and come from an unbelieving family. It's my hope for small group to be a place where we can encourage each other to live for Jesus Christ. I want us to keep it real with each other, pray for each other, and share about what God is doing in each of our lives. Contact me if you're interested in small group or if you want to hit up the gym sometime!

Andrew Schurr (4th year)
aschurr@ucla.edu

Hey guys, I'm Andrew Schurr, and I'm a 4th year mechanical engineering major. If there's a ball, I'll play it (or watch it). If it's badminton, it's not a sport. This year in small group, I'd like to focus on developing a greater biblical worldview, specifically focusing on transitioning from boys into mature men of God—from spiritual disciplines to relationships to the way we act/speak/think. We'll pray together, grow together, keep each other accountable, and work to identify and eliminate "respectable sins" in our lives. My hope is that the lessons learned this year in small group will be extremely practical and applicable. Feel free to come and talk to me or shoot me an email—I'm also open to things you'd like to cover!

Austin Chiang (3rd year)
austin.ychiang@gmail.com

We are called to do all things "to the glory of God." How often, though, do we stop and consider what the glory of God is? Why is it so important? After all, "glory" does appear 359 times in the Bible. My group will be focusing on this very topic. In particular we will be studying past, present, and future glory and (most importantly) learning how to apply what we've learned to our everyday living. Oh, almost forgot—SUP! I'm Austin, a third-year Mathematics & Economics major. I enjoy kpop and almost anything Korean, early morning runs, chess, badminton, eating, jamming, and laughing. Feel free to talk to me about anything! I would love to get to know you :)

Tony Wu (grad)
wu.tony.t@gmail.com
Benson Low (grad)
benslow3@gmail.com

Hi, Tony and I (Benson) are co-leading a small group. I am entering my second year teaching high school chemistry. I (Tony) just graduated with a chemical engineer degree and entered the work force as a manufacturing process engineer at PPG. For small group you can expect lots of prayer and opportunities to live out your faith. Since you get plenty of teaching from church and fellowship, we want to aid you in the development of convictions over truth and the action that should follow as a disciple of Christ. We will go through relevant passages of scripture, Christian books and sermons as a means to become men of integrity, courage, maturity, humility and godliness. We will kick off the year with a study on hospitality.

Bryan DeLaRiva (4th year)
bdelariva78@gmail.com

Hey! I'm a fourth year majoring in International Development Studies! In small group, we shall be learning more about Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior so that our love for Him may grow and overflow in every area of life. We shall be looking at who He was and is, rejoice in the freedom we have in Him through a study on the book of Galatians, as well as learning to share that joy with others! If you're interested, feel free to talk to me or email me!

Carlton Chan (grad)
carltonchan@gmail.com

Hi, there! My name is Carlton and I'm a 3rd year graduate student in dental school. Although you might think I only like teeth, I actually love people much more and also enjoy hanging out with anybody! For small group this year, my main goal is to cultivate solid accountability and encourage each other towards holiness as we live our everyday lives. As the Proverb says, "Better is open rebuke than hidden love." We'll also be studying the Gospel of Matthew to learn from the life of Christ. Feel free to talk to me if you're interested or have any questions! I'd love to share more of my heart for this upcoming year.

Chris Chan (3rd year)
cchan1991@ucla.edu

Sup guys!! Chris is the name and I'm a third year studying international development studies/ accounting. In my free time, I love playing basketball, swimming, drinking boba, and watching sports! For small group this year, I want to focus on using things that we are passionate about, whether it is playing sports, playing music, or whatever you are passionate about, as a means of building relationships with other people and sharing the gospel through that friendship. I want to dig deep into every aspect of the gospel that we may often glance over, tackle tough apologetic questions, and learn how to live out the gospel in every part of our lives. I hope to develop men of conviction and emphasize discipleship, transparency, as well as leadership. We will do lots of fun things and I can't wait to grow in this brotherhood of Christ with you guys! If you have any questions, come say wassup! Don't worry, I'm friendly like a friendly polar bear!

Chris Underhill (3rd year)
chrisunderhill@gmail.com

Howdy! My name's Chris, and I'm a 3rd year Mechanical Engineering major! I enjoy eating, especially ice cream, cookies, and meat, as well as playing all kinds of sports, and doing manly things. In small group, I want to study "grace." I want to study the doctrine of grace in the theological context as well as what it properly means to be gracious Christians. We will also spend time studying topics and/or developing skills that whomever of you join specifically desire. I hope for small group to be a place of encouragement, learning, exhortation, accountability, and more encouragement as we seek to become more like Christ! I'm excited for DBS this year and for the work that God has in store for us as we share the Gospel!

Cordell Gee (grad)
cordellgee@gmail.com

Hey. My name is Cordell Gee. I recently graduated UCLA and will be starting a career in Public Accounting in the fall. I have gone to GOC all four years of my undergraduate studies and have not regretted one minute. I believe that small group is a place where men can grow in their faith by not only studying God's word but also applying it inside and outside of the group.

I am looking for a couple of more guys who would like to start small group quickly and dive into a topical study of the Pastoral Epistles (Timothy's and Titus). I am excited to study these letters because they contain much about who God is, what Christ has done, and what the church is supposed to do. I ask for men who are willing to serve God as well as the other men in the group. Find me so we can talk!

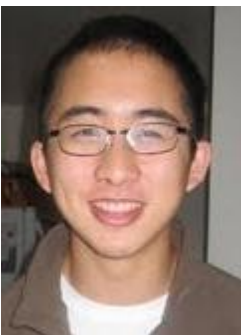

Ed Lan (grad)
edtylan@gmail.com

Hey! I'm Ed and I graduated a couple years ago from UCLA majoring in music and physiological sciences. For me, small group has always been about spurring each other on to love and good deeds. We do that by studying Scripture together, figuring out how it applies to our lives, and considering how we ought to reorient our thinking to better glorify Him. In small group this year, we will be going through a variety of studies that will cultivate our love for Christ and strengthen our walks with Him. As a group we will be studying how we ought to pray, how to deal with spiritual doubt, missions, and we will be spending quality time in prayer as well as Scripture memorization. Feel free to talk to me if you have any questions!

Eric Lan (4th year)
erictylan@gmail.com

So you're thinking about small groups? You won't go wrong with anyone you choose but to help you out, here's what I'll be doing. My focus is going to be on studying and (more importantly!) applying how to be a godly man using the book Disciplines of a Godly Man by Kent Hughes. I'll be leading a DBS small group so we'll also be focusing on evangelism. Talk to me to find out more! I'd love to hang out.

Geo Ng (4th year)
geong543@gmail.com

Hello there, I'm Geo. I'm going to be a 4th year electrical engineer and enjoy doing loads of fun stuff, like playing all sorts of sports, watching all sorts of sports, eating enormous amounts of food, and above all, learning new things about God. Which, coincidentally, will be part of what we will do in small group this year. My goal for small group is that you would finish the year loving God more than you do right now. To grow our affections for God, we'll learn about what He's like and what we can do to both show love to God and to remind ourselves to walk with Him daily. Come talk to me whether or not you want to join my small group and I would love to get to know you and grow in Christ together.

Greg Wai (4th year)
gwai415@gmail.com

Hello there! My name is Greg Wai and I'm a senior studying Physiological Science. Among the many things that I enjoy doing, some of the main ones include eating and martial arts. I firmly believe that our relationship with our Lord Jesus Christ should drive all the things that we do and do not do in life. My hope for the group will be to cultivate our walks with Christ so that we may be able to better love Him and glorify Him in all that we do. I am currently looking for a freshman to complete the group, so come talk to me if you have any questions or are at all interested!

Isaac Hui (grad)
eesahk@gmail.com

Hello! I'm Isaac Hui, I just recently graduated from UCLA as a physiological science major and am currently doing research at UCLA. I enjoy singing, playing guitar, and soccer. This coming year, I plan to study through the book of James with an emphasis on applying God's word and living our lives faithfully. We'll also be touching on the topic of evangelism (what to say, how to say it, what you believe, why you believe etc.) Feel free to contact me if you have any questions. I'm excited to see how the Lord will work this year!

Joel Wong (grad)
jwongpsone@gmail.com

Hello there! I'm Joel, I graduated from UCLA in Electrical Engineering in 2010 and Mechanical Engineering in 2011. I like music in general, singing and playing instruments. I also like to play basketball and badminton. I hope to encourage and grow together with you this year as we go through a variety passages and books so we can be more like Christ our Lord and savior.

Hey! My name is Jonathan Yang and I'm a 3rd year MIMG major. A little about myself: I'm a big fan of the outdoors (camping, fishing, shooting), sports (basketball!) and reading. But most importantly, I love God. I'm excited for this coming year with the opportunities and challenges that God has graciously planned for us. My hope is for this small group to have a pure love for Christ. Loving God is the greatest commandment for Christians, and we will pursue this by examining the Word, Christian discipline, evangelism, and service. Feel free to call or email me so we can hang out and get to know each other!

Jonathan Yang (3rd year)
jonathanyanglce@gmail.com

Men of God!!! Good news; this year we have been given yet another chance to worship the One True and Living God with our lives! Are you ready? Are you excited? It's been said that, "We truly believe the Passages in Scripture that we actually Live Out." My goal this year is to serve you guys in anyway possible so that you may better come to know, love, and ultimately live for our GREAT GOD daily till the day you die. But, reading a blurb isn't good enough to get the full picture; so if you are the type of guy who is serious about living for Christ today, come and talk to me so that we can get to know each other better. I can fill you in on what small group will look like this year in better detail. Thanks! -John 17:3-

Joshua Amano (3rd year)
mcgermygerm@gmail.com

Suupp guys - I'm Justin and I'm going to be a third year music-turned-biochemistry major. I love playing Ultimate Frisbee and tennis, eating good food (barbecue – Korean or otherwise!) and listening to country music! More importantly, however, in small group this year, I want to go over the all-important question of how Christ and His gospel ought to affect our lives. We all have a lot to learn about this, and small group will be about looking into the Bible to find out how to apply this truth specifically to each of our lives. We will be studying the Word, praying, and keeping each other accountable through what we learn. If you're interested, shoot me an email or introduce yourself to me, and we can get together and talk.

Justin Lin (3rd year)
jjlin91@gmail.com

Hello all, I'm Kelly. I graduated from UCLA in 2011 and now I'm starting grad school here in aerospace engineering. For small group this year, I'd like to begin by looking at spiritual disciplines and mindsets we should be cultivating in order to establish good habits at the outset of the school year. I'm still deciding where to go after that, but any input is welcome! I'd also like to put a big emphasis on reviewing the many sermons we hear each week in order to actively apply them to our lives. Some of my personal interests that will probably find their way into SG are food, music (piano), hiking, baseball, and simply hanging out. Please feel free to talk to me or email me if you're interested!

Kelly Gemmill (grad)
kgemmill@ucla.edu

What's up with the church? Do I need to go to church? Do I really need to go to church? Is it really a big deal to skip church? If you are honest enough with yourself, what is the point of going to church so early on Sunday, only to fall asleep for half of the time? This year in small group, we'll be studying the big deal called the church (no, not the building). I am Ken, a 4th year math major, and I am on an quest to find young men who dare to leave their arrogance at the church porch so they can ascertain their proper roles within the body of Christ and play the men of the church. Does that sound like you? If so, hit me up for a ride to the glorious kingdom of God's people. Lord willing, we'll read the Bible, read books, serve the church, and rack up glory for God in the process.

Michael Tu (grad)
emtu@ucla.edu
Tae Jin (grad)
tjin@mednet.ucla.edu

Michael is a third-year engineering grad student, and Tae is a first-year nursing grad student. With our powers combined, there's nothing we can't eat. There are things we can't afford, though, and that's why we always eat single burger and fries. Sometimes we feel like eating healthy, so we order sweet potato fries instead of normal fries. It's splendid. With regards to teaching, our goal this year will be to understand the harmony of the Bible. Our method will be to give a bird's eye view of Bible history, while also focusing on specific themes that show the unity of the Old and New Testaments. As we grow together in a deeper understanding of the unity of the Bible, we will witness the perfect consistency of the Author's character. He is worthy to be praised by all the nations. Many have not yet heard. We have work to do.

Matt Ng (grad)
mattng110@gmail.com

What up fellas, I'm Matt. I graduated last year from UCLA with a degree in International Development Studies and a minor in Teaching ESL. Currently, I'm a barista at the green coffee place (that we all know and love) and tutoring English. I enjoy people, loud music, medium-rare goodness, baseball, a good laugh, large burritos, and all things guitar. If there's one thing I wished I started learning earlier in undergrad, it's the fact that the Bible isn't just a guidebook that we inform our lives with. Instead, it's our life's IV line and the defining factor for every issue we think through (and don't think through). As we study it intently and intensively, we'll aim to develop a working mechanism for ourselves to think through all of life—a way of forming biblical convictions and a biblical worldview even long after college is over. We'll also spend plenty of time eating, singing, and praying. Shoot me an email or chat with me if you're interested and also if you're not!

Stephen Cheng (4th year)
stephcheng90@gmail.com

What does it mean practically to "delight yourself in the LORD," as David says in Psalm 37:4? With schoolwork, floor activities, and everything else going on, how can we cultivate an attitude in which God is our sole satisfaction? Hi, my name is Stephen Cheng. I am a 4th year English major who enjoys playing guitar, composing songs, and contemplating the glory of God. This year, we'll be going through John Piper's classic Desiring God, as well as other helpful supplemental books, to get a greater grasp of what it means to love God, especially when we're just "not feeling it." If you have any questions about anything, please come talk to me!

Tim Ushijima (grad)
tim.ushijima@gmail.com

Hey, my name is Tim Ushijima and I am a grad student studying civil engineering. My passion is to see young men grow into godly leaders who excel both on a spiritual and human level. The first quarter I'll be taking my guys through the GOC class on evangelism to learn and grow together through ministry. After the first quarter we'll see where God takes us. Outside of ministry and school I enjoy sports (particularly baseball), fly and bait fishing, and anything that involves a mountain (i.e. hiking, snowboarding, and mountain biking). I'm more than happy to talk to anyone about anything ranging from school to fishing for men or fish to dreaming up ways to enjoy the lives that God has blessed us with.

Tim Woo (3rd year)
trwoo@ucla.edu

Hey everyone! About me, I love rock climbing and snowboarding. I also love soccer, basketball, baseball and football, the usual sports. I'm from SF, I play the ukulele, I'm a computer science major, I admittedly like to read, and I'm leading a small group this year! For small group I have plans to go over Jesus' last words to His disciples, faith, and book studies. However, that is completely subject to change so don't quote me! More than anything, my hope for small group is to grow in my guys a desire to know God, so that as a group we will ask questions concerning God's nature and characteristics, challenge each other's understandings, and ultimately challenge our own faith. Consequently I hope that we would build each other up in Christ, know God better, gain assurance of faith, follow Him more faithfully, and most importantly find joy in centering our lives around Him. Come find me if you'd like to know more! I'm about 5'8 and Asian, hopefully that helps.

William Chong (4th year)
weuchong@gmail.com

Hey, guys. I'm William and I am a senior political science major. I really enjoy being physically active and exploring new things. I especially love playing tennis, hiking, whatever-crosses-my-path hunting in Florida, and running. In small group, I hope to explore the wisdom, grace, and instruction found in God's Word and ways we can, as followers of Christ, shape our lives to reflect His teachings. To be doers of the Word, not just hearers. Specifically, I plan to study aspects such as leadership, the importance of accountability, spiritual maturity and discipline, and a Christian's evangelistic responsibility as a steward of the Word. Through examining God's Word and developing an intimate relationship with Christ, I anticipate that our faiths will be stretched, our hearts will be changed, and we will learn how to face the world's challenges everyday. As His Word shapes our lives, I hope we will strive to be men who build and follow strong convictions with unwavering faith. Don't hesitate to ask me questions or shoot me an email.
